MINERAL WELL FOUND.

Frank Ralston Strikes Sulphur And Salts Water At 117 Feet.

IS 4 1-2 MILES FROM TOWN.

Samples of The Water Have Been Sent To The City.

Frank Ralston a few days ago struck a strong stream of mineral water on his farm 4 1/2 miles from town on the Butler road. The stream was struck at a depth 117 feet, just after boring through 80 feet of stone. The water immediately ran to a depth of 92 feet in the well.

It is strongly impregnated with sulphur, salt and salts. The sulphur taste is especially strong and the sodium chloride is so strong that it is not necessary to add salt to the water to make it palatable.

The water is now to be had at the Coates Drug store and a sample has had sent off for analysis. It is supposed to have real value as a medicine water and Mr. Ralston believes he has discovered a valuable stream. An analysis of the water is awaited with much interest.

DONE TO-DAY.

Walnut Street Bridge Ready For the Public.

The Walnut street bridge of the L. & N. Railroad will be finished to-day and only the grading for the approaches will delay opening the bridge to travel. This work is being done by a local contractor and will be rushed to completion. The Eighteenth street bridge is now being used by the public.

Both Died.

John W. Taylor killed Mrs. Fredrick Fessler at Newport, and immediately afterward, killed himself. He wanted Mrs. Fessler to run away with him.

No Meeting.

There was no meeting of the Elks lodge Tuesday night, owing to the absence of several of the officers in Louisville.

TRAGEDIES UP IN AIR.

St. Croix Johnstone and Wm. R. Badger the Victims of Falls.

DEFECTS IN MAGAZINES.

Neck of one was Broken the Other was Drowned After Falling.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Two aviators, William R. Badger of Pittsburg and St. Croix Johnstone of Chicago, both young men lost their lives at the international aviation meet here today.

In dying, both revealed the frailty of the cage in which many more aviators were curving and gliding about the air, with scarce a pause for the deaths of their contemporaries.

Death in both cases was due to unexplained accidents, probably the results of unsuspected defects in the mechanism of the machines and was in no way caused by carelessness nor lack of responsibility of the drivers. Badger, a wealthy youth, careened to his death in a pit in the aviation field. There had been a flaw in one of the paddles propelling the machine he drove. Centrifugal force broke the propeller, upset the delicate equilibrium of the machine, and Badger dashed one hundred feet to the bottom of the pit. His neck was broken.

JOHNSTONE'S AWFUL FALL

Johnstone fell fifty feet under his engine, and was drowned as the result of an equally unsuspected defect. Caught under the heavy engine in a monoplane, he was carried deep into Lake Michigan and his body was not brought to the surface until an hour later.

MARSE HENRY TURNED DOWN BY DEMOCRATS

County Unit Local Option Goes in Democratic Platform.

BECKHAM'S CONTENTION WINS

Platform Adopted Against Pro-test of Watterson on Floor of Conventoin.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—Delegates to Kentucky's democratic platform convention last night refused to accept Henry Watterson's advice, and adopted the majority report of the resolutions committee, which provided, among other things, for the extension of the county unit law to all counties of the state. Watterson, himself a delegate, was a member of the committee of thirteen. He presented the minority report, which differed only as to that feature, and moved to amend so as to leave the liquor laws as they stand, urging that the county unit was but a preface to prohibition.

Both parties go into the campaign with similar planks, the democrats led by former Governor McCreary, and the Republicans by Judge Edward C. O'Rear, now a member of the appellate court. The contest in the convention this afternoon did not prove as severe as expected.

The vote on Watterson's amendment was 514 for and 667 against. Immediately it was lost, the majority report was proposed, and carried unanimously. Besides the county unit law, which has not been in force in counties where were situated cities of the first four classes, the platform commends the democratic congress and the state's democratic representatives and condemns everything republican. The resolutions contain no indorsement of any national candidate, but declare for popular election of United States senators, the direct primary, and for good roads.

THROWS DOWN GAUNTLET.

Watterson, himself a delegate from this district, in a signed editorial threw down the gauntlet. He referred to his opposition to former Governor Beckham when that candidate for senator defeated former Governor McCreary at a state primary to nominate, and declared the same influences he fought then now seek to extend the county unit law and eventually bring about prohibition.

The Kentucky law as to local option provides that the county shall be a unit except in counties where there are cities of considerable size. The platform of the republicans, whose candidate for governor is Judge Edward C. O'Rear, member of the court of appeals, provides for the extension to all counties of the unit law. The democrats, who have named James Bennett McCreary, former governor and former United States senator, for the governorship, postponed until to-day the making of a platform.

Few of the delegates came instructed, except to vote solidly, and the candidates, in conference since Sunday, failed to agree as to the county unit.

Mr. McCreary's last word before the convention assembled was that the candidates were unwilling to dictate, but believed "the sentiment of the state is in favor of an extension of the county unit law, and would be satisfied if the convention so declared."

Mr. Watterson, who has contended daily against the incorporation in the democratic platform of a county unit local option plank, was yesterday named as member of the resolutions committee.

Judge O'Rear is avowedly against statewide prohibition, as are the democratic candidates.

BOY'S HAND BLOWN OFF.

Gets Into Supply of Explosives Left in Barn.

Madisonville, Ky., Aug. 16.—A dynamite cap exploded in the hands of Roy Madison, aged 12, son of Buck Madison, a prominent farmer, early this morning, blowing the left hand entirely off and severely burning the other. His face was also badly burned. The attending physicians fear that blood poisoning will develop.

The lad was playing with the cap before it let go, unaware of the risk he was running. His father has been blowing out stumps in new ground for the past few weeks and the lad ran onto the supply of explosives in the barn.

Cook-Butler.

Willis Cook and Miss Alma Butler, of this county, eloped to Clarksville Monday and were married by Esq. Smith. They were accompanied by several couples of their young friends. They live in the Southern part of the county and made the trip in buggies.

Mrs. Lea Convalescent.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Senator Luke Lea, of Tennessee, returned to the Senate after a hurried trip to Colorado with his wife, who is convalescing after a severe illness. He received many congratulations when he resumed his seat in the Senate.

POSTAL MOVES.

Telegraph Office Now In New Location.

Manager Hall, of the Postal Telegraph office moved yesterday into the new office in the Phoenix building, next to Countzler's drug store.

Picken & Adkins, the barbers formerly in the Elks building, will occupy the Postal's old stand on Main street, next to Roseborough's. They will continue the shop on Seventh street where they opened after the Elks fire, conducting two shops.

FELL WITH CRASH

Part of Old Elks Building Topples Over.

While the workmen were trying to lower the wreckage of the concrete second story of the old Elks building Tuesday, the south end broke loose and fell with a loud crash into the alley behind. No damage was done except to demolish some guttering on the adjoining building and break some wires. The men were not in a place of danger.

Want Bethel Graduates.

President H. G. Brownell, of Bethel Female College, has received several calls for teachers who have graduated from Bethel that he is unable to supply. Only two of his graduates are available, whereas one school wrote for three of them. Graduates of this popular institution are widely recognized as highly educated and as teachers are always in strong demand.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—As the result of a tearful recital in the city

Lexington trained nurse, in which she related her alleged mistreatment at the hands of Curtis Allen, aged 29, the latter was held to answer to the grand jury on the charge of criminal assault. Allen's bond was fixed at $5,000. He is married and has two children.

She told her mother, she said, that she was going to visit a friend, but came to Louisville, Allen having written her and sent her money.
For a week, she says, she was held a prisoner at a house on East Walnut street.

CHASED BY THE BLACKFEET

Old Trailer's Thrilling Narrative of Adventure Comes to the Quite Logical Conclusion.

The Old Traveler was relating his experiences among the Indians.
"Once I were chased by th' Black-feet. It were up in Montana an'
I were ridin' a gover'mint mule.
When I see th' Blackfeet comin' I lit out fr' camp, but they kep' gainin' till I see I wan't goin' t' git away fir'm 'em, so I turned off th' trail an' headed fr' a long narrier rock ridge, expectin' t' find a rock t' hide behind. There wan't any rocks that looked big 'nough so I kep' on going an' the ridge kep' gittin' narrier and narrier and steeper an' steeper an' the Injuns kep' gittin' closer an' closer, till finally th' ridge come to an end, and there I was.

"I lit offen th' mule an' she lit out hell bent back tords th' Injuns.
I looked over th' side an' see a narrier ledge 'bout ten feet down; I see it were life or death, so I jumped down onto th' ledge an' lay down right up 'ginst th' face of th' cliff.
Th' Injuns come chargin' down an'
one of 'em looked over an' see me.
He pulled up his bow an' arret an'—"

The old man stopped, searched in his pocket for a match, found one and lighted his pipe.

"What happened then," someone asked.

"Oh, he pinned me t' that rock

BUYS TWO LOTS FOR PROWSIE

Man Finds on Them Just the Kind of Grass His Pet Cat Needs.

A little group of persons was waiting out in the suburban zone of Long Island last Sunday. They had been looking at lots, and, because the day was hot and they were tired, were listening listlessly to the real estate man. Suddenly one of the group, who had been gazing idly into the bit of woodland close by, started hurriedly toward it and returned with a big handful of grass.

"I think I will take those two lots," he exclaimed animatedly. The real estate man did not ask why, but some of the others inquired the reason for his sudden determination.

"This grass I just found is the kind that I have been traveling two miles to get, four times a week, all this summer. It's for our cat, and this variety of cat salad is the only sort that he will touch. Grass is necessary for his health, for he hasn't been out of doors for six years. If we build out here, there will be plenty of just the right sort of grass for Prowsie—cat's name—and I think, too, that he will like the country. So have the papers drawn up as soon as you like."—

GETTING RID OF FEAR.

"What is meant by auto-suggestion?" writes a correspondent. The phrase simply signifies self-suggestion to good ends. For instance, if one particularly dislikes to do something one ought, one may conquer the disinclination by resolutely saying over words expressing the necessity of doing the thing at once and with pleasure. The person who is afraid to go upstairs in the dark may, it is said, overcome this fear by saying, "I am not afraid, darkness is friendly, nothing can hurt me." The underlying idea is that the mind is the real ruler of the body, and that by allowing the mind to take command of the situation from the higher and not the lower point of view, ill may be vanquished and good accomplished.—The Christian Herald.

POSTPONED INDULGENCE.

"How do you account for the popularity of some of these best sellers?" asked the severely literary lady.

"I think," replied Miss Cayenne,
"that a lot of us are trying to catch up with the dime novels our parents prevented us from reading when we were young."

NATURAL INFERENCE.

"I have a talking machine at my house that never runs down."

"So? I didn't know you were married."

DIFFERENT THING.

"I hear your husband, ma'am, has taken to aviation."
"It's a slander. He's taken the

Who Was There That You Knew?

IN the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked down from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Pierpont Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review or Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs.
It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War—for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

CATCHING THE CROWD EASY

Test of Public Man's Success, However, Is to Hold People's Respect and Confidence.

The test of a public man's success with the people is his ability to hold their respect and confidence, not simply to catch the crowd. A man may be severely criticised for some individual act, but no single act is to form the basis of popular judgment. The man who wears with the people is the man worth while, the man who serves the people best and whose public words and deeds will bear the scrutiny of time. It is no indictment of a man's sincerity or quality of intellect for him to possess the knack of catching the fancy of those to whom he speaks, whether from the rostrum or through the press. Indeed, that is very necessary accomplishment these days. But it is an indictment of him when he seeks no more than to gain superficial popular approval for purely selfish ends.

The people may be taken off their feet for the moment by an apt phrase, but they cannot be kept off their feet by one. They may applaud the eloquence of a demagogue at first, but they will after a while find him out and reject him. The people are ultimately correct in the application of their own test. They often act by impulse and with error, but they always come back finally to a sober judgment, and then comes the reckoning for those who have played upon their credulity.

THEY PRODUCE HEAT.

Mr. Smith—My boy at college is going to have a hot time this year.

Mr. Jones—Think so?
Mr. Smith—Sure of it. I am going to give him a Turkish bath cabinet and a sweater.

REMEDY FOR MOTHS.

Air the bedclothes thoroughly, fold the blankets in paper and scatter freely among the folds hemlock or arbor vitae sprigs, dry sweet flags, lavender or sachet powder. These are equally as effective as moth balls and give the bed clothes an agreeable odor. Paste the ends of the paper together and paste wrapping paper over the top of the case in such a way so as to leave no cracks through which moths can find entrance. Place these in a large packing box which has been lined with heavy wrapping paper and then nail down the lid.—Woman's National Weekly.

TO KEEP BUTTER COOL.

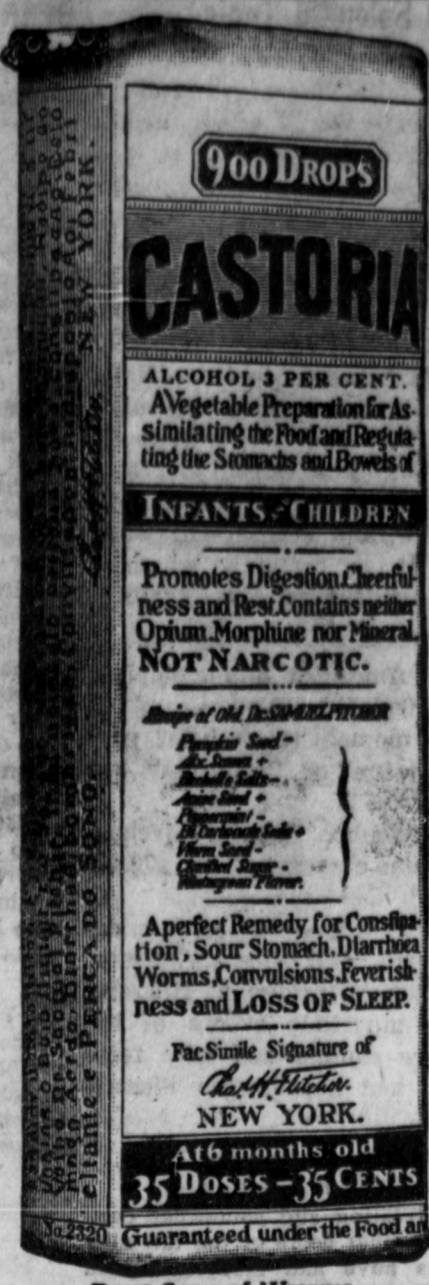

A convenient and easy way to keep butter cool is by applying the principle of cooling by evaporation, as used in the wet bulb of the wet and dry bulb hygrometer. The butter is placed in a closed receptacle (butter dish with lid), and after this has been placed in a soup plate containing water a wet cloth is put over the dish with its ends in the water. Evaporation goes on at the surface of the cloth, and more water is supplied to the cloth from the place below. This keeps the cloth and dish inside at a few degrees below the atmospheric temperature, and by this means butter can be kept firm in the hottest days.

A TECHNICAL MIND.

"What in the name of common sense are you arresting me for?" asked the motorist who had accidentally violated a regulation.
"I ain't arrestin' you in the name of common sense," replied the rustic sheriff. "I'm arrestin' you in the name of the law."

McLEAN COLLEGE

(Formerly South Kentucky College)
HOPKINSVILLE, - KENTUCKY.

A school where every teacher is thoroughly acquainted with every student; when personal influence is considered the greatest power in controlling and developing pupils; where clean morals, systematic living, and self-reliance are held as prerequisites to the attainment of high scholarship or successful life.

Statistics of the school show that 92 per cent of the young men educated have turned out well.

Teachers live in dormitories with pupils. All the activities of pupils under direct control of teachers. Best heating, lighting, ventilation and drainage. Sixty two years without a death. Twenty-five years with but one serious case of illness. Preparatory courses for all universities and professional schools. Standard college courses. Music, Art, Oratory. Board and tuition $200 per year. Illustrated catalogue on application. A. C. KUYKENDALL, President.

The Standard Yard.

In 1855 there was completed a gun-metal bar, representing the imperial standard yard of Great Britain. It was found, however, that standards made of bronze or gun metal were liable to an appreciable alteration in length through molecular and other changes, and accordingly a few years ago, the imperial standard was replaced with a bar of iridium-platinum, consisting of 90 per cent platinum and 10 per cent iridium.

This new alloy is less alterable than bronze. The new bar was made of an X-shaped cross-section to combine rigidity with comparative lightness, and for one year it was subjected to a series of tests and measurements involving the most refined methods known to science. The bar has marked on it the length both of the standard yard and of the standard meter.—Harper's Weekly.

Not the Odor of Araby.

Theodore P. Shonts at a dinner at the Chicago club, praised the ventilation of New York's tubes. "Our tubes," he said, "smell as sweet, almost, as a clover field in June. But I wish you could smell the underground railways of London, especially those railways that haven't been electrified!" Mr. Shonts' beaming smile was evidence of the fact that an appropriate story had come into his mind. "Two spirits clad in winding sheets," he said, "advanced with slow, shrinking steps toward a portal over which were inscribed the words, 'All hope abandon, ye who enter here.' From this portal belched vast volumes of foul black smoke. The first spirit, as he neared the dreadful gateway, sniffed. 'My word!' he said. 'It smells like the blowed tuppenny tube!' 'Oh, not so bad as that,' said the second spirit."

A Reasonable Request.

"Sit down!" exclaimed the man of few inches.

The man of many took no notice. "Sit down!" repeated the little man again. "I can't see anything!"

But still the giant paid no heed, and the little man could only hear the tantalizing sounds of feet and carriage wheels as the procession passed along.

"Will—you—sit—down?" he cried, for the third time. "I've paid two guineas for this seat and you're blotting every blessed thing from view!"

Again no response.
"Well, if you won't sit down," roared the little man, thumping the giant on his massive back, "will you at least oblige me by tying your ears back?"

Feathered Quadruped.

L. J. Davis of Sedgwick has a freak chicken that he is raising this summer, says the Kansas City Journal. It has four legs. Three of the "dumsticks" are on one side. The other leg is like any well-regulated chicken ought to have. Mr. Davis says he hopes to raise the chicken and perfect a new breed. He says the man who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before is considered a public benefactor, and if he can succeed in making four "dumsticks" grow where only two ordinarily sprout he will be somewhat of a philanthropist himself.

Prefer German Language.

In Russian schools pupils have the option of learning French or German, and 70 per cent choose German.

JOURNALISM IN NEW JERSEY

Old Man Was the Item's Entire Staff and He Had Only One Paper.

A traveling Philadelphia salesman passed through a small New Jersey town the other day, and having some time to wait for the train, walked up the main street, relates the Philadelphia Times. He came to a small house and saw over the door the sign, "Blankville Item."

Entering, he inquired of the old white-haired man who greeted him for the managing editor.

"I'm him," came the short answer.

"How large a staff have you?" asked the young man, by way of making conversation.

"Why," grunted the old man, "my cane's about two inches thick."

"No, no," interrupted the salesman. "I mean how many men have you on the paper. How many work for you?"

"Waal," the other returned, "I'm the only one."

Somewhat discouraged, the man asked how business had been, and, after receiving the answer that it had "been the same for twenty years," he endeavored to make a smooth exit by asking for a paper. "I'd like to let you have one," said the one-man staff, "but you see I—er—I only got one and that's mine."

HE WOULD LIVE TO BE 140

Little Girl's Estimate Was Based on Double Life Her Uncle Was Living.

Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, said at a Republican banquet at White River Junction:

"In politics we must be straightforward. On the tariff question, the labor question, the trust question, we must be open and above board. Any inconsistency or crawling will be visited on our heads a thousandfold. Yes, even out of the mouths of babes shall we be condemned."

Dr. Butterfield smiled.

"Like the rich uncle," he resumed. "A rich uncle of the rosy-gilled type was riding his little niece on his knee when the child lisped:

"Uncle, how long does a person live?"

"Three score years and ten, my dear, is our scriptural allotment," he replied piously.

"Then you," said the pretty little girl, "will live to be a hundred and forty, won't you?"

"Ha, ha!" he laughed. "Why should you think that, yet?"

"Because," said she, "I heard mamma and papa say that you were leading a double life."

OUR CONSCIENTIOUS AGE.

Many of the most conscientious persons go about with an habitually apologetic air, writes S. M. Crothers in the Atlantic. They are rapidly acquiring the evasive air of the conscientious criminal. It is only a very hardened philanthropist, or an unsophisticated beginner in good works who can look a sociologist in the eye. Most persons when they do one thing begin to apologize for not doing something else. They are like a one-track railroad that has been congested with traffic. They are not sure which train has the right of way, and which should go on the siding. Progress is a series of rear-end collisions.

THACKERAY IN BOOK STORES.

Idle as it may be to gauge the worth or permanence of a novelist by the passing demand for his works, the proof of the author is, after all, in the reading. By this test Thackeray, whose centenary we celebrated recently, is found to preserve a vigorous grip on cotemporary attention. In the libraries he is always in demand, a little above Scott and a little below Dickens and Eliot. In the book stores of the novelists whom we group as Victorian, Dickens sells best and Thackeray next; this by common report, which must allow for the fluctuations of popular taste.

A TYPE.

Captain Hardress Lloyd described at a luncheon at Tuxedo the typical young British officer.

"A typical British officer," he said, "was one who, quartered for two years at Cairo, never got out to see the Pyramids."

"You see," he explained, "what with polo and parties and cricket and bridge I never had, my dear fellow, a minute to myself."

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Glove M. Torre, a clerk in the San Francisco main post office, is the champion letter distributor of the world.

In an exhibition Torre broke the record by sorting 2,346 cards with no errors in thirty-seven minutes. This is an average of 63.4-10 cards a minute. This mail was thrown into seventeen compartments.

More Masked Men.

Woodbury, Tenn., Aug. 14.—Dent McGregor was held up and robbed by three masked men late yesterday afternoon four miles south of here on the Manchester road. He was relieved of $30, which he had just collected while at work away from home. One of the men held a pistol in his face while the others went through his pockets. No clue has been found to the highwaymen. He lives about five miles south of Woodbury.

Relic Of The Maine.

Havana, Aug. 14.—The class ring which had belonged to Assistant Engineer Darwin R. Merritt, whose bones were recovered recently from the wreck of the battleship Maine and taken to New York for interment, was today placed in the custody of American Minister Jackson by the editor of El Mundo. Mr. Jackson will surrender the relic to Maj. Ferguson, the engineer in charge of the wreck. The manner in which the ring came into the possession of El Mundo has not been explained.

SHE READ UP ON HISTORY

Brave Effort of the Young Girl to Entertain Her First Male Caller.

No one who has ever in his youth felt the responsibility of "making conversation" can read unsympathetically this little tale from the Chicago Evening Post. A young girl who attended a dance but had not been formally introduced into society found herself confronted with the serious responsibility of entertaining her first young man caller. He had asked permission to call after having danced with her, and an appointment was made for several evenings distant.

The girl had no worldly education and was considerably flustered over the prospect of having to keep the conversation up to a gentle boil. Her friends assured her that conversation was not difficult, once started, but that there must be some reliance on standard topics when an acquaintance was just forming. The young man was college-bred, they pointed out, and probably familiar with literature, music, art or history.

History!

That was an inspiration, and she began to read it with avidity.

The evening came, and with it the young man. He presented her with some long-stemmed roses, told her she looked charming, referred to the pleasure he had had in dancing with her, and rattled on with the rest of the usual opening chorus.

Then he paused, leaned back and crossed his legs.

The girl changed color several times, choked momentarily and said: "Wasn't that a perfectly terrible thing about Mary Queen of Scots?"

GOOD WAY.

Tom—I've got a grudge against Jackson, but I'm going to get even with him next Christmas.

Jack—How?

Tom—Going to send his boy a fife and drum.

MILTON'S PICTURE OF LONDON.

Behold now this vast city; a city of refuge, the mansion house of liberty encompassed and surrounded with his protection; the shop of war hath not there more anvils and hammers, to fashion out the plates and instruments of armed justice in defense of beleaguered truth than there be pens and heads there, sitting by their studious lamps, musing, searching, revolving new notions and ideas wherewith to present, as with their homage and their fealty the approaching Reformation, others as fast reading, trying all things, assenting to the force of reason and conviction. What could a man require more than a nation so pliant and so prone to seek after knowledge? What wants there to such a towardly pregnant soil but wise and faithful laborers to make a knowing people, a nation of prophets, of sages and of worthies?

GREASE VERSUS GRAVITY.

Dr. Arthur William White of Yale delights in telling of his experience with an inventor of the unlabeled genius type who came to the professor with a model of a perpetual motion machine.

"It's looks plausible," observed Dr. White, "but it won't work. What are you going to do about gravity?" "Gravity?" said the visitor, scornfully. "Tell wit' gravity; we'll use plenty o' grease."—Cosmopolitan.

A BACHELOR'S QUESTION.

"That poor man has just buried his fourth wife."

"Why do you call him poor? Is he a believer in expensive funerals?"

VERY HAPPY.

Mrs. Weeds (at Reno)—Was your second marriage happy?

Mrs. Divorsey—Yes; why, it was a case of divorce at sight.—Exchange.

THE MAGAZINES

The Smart Set for September publishes an essay on "The High brow" by James L. Ford, which makes the fourth in a list of rather remarkable essays this clever magazine has collected in the past few months. These essays have been more than merely pleasant reading; they have put forth certain boldly original ideas.

"Repression," by Phillips Lyman, in a recent number, was a protest against the too stringent conventionalities that beset woman. Ellis Parker Butler followed with a new interpretation for our national holidays—in view of the trend of their latter day method of celebration; and Richard Le Gallienne argued for the present as the real romantic age instead of the dull prosaic one it is generally considered.

Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Ordinarily there are so many unusual articles in each number of Popular Mechanics Magazine that it is difficult to choose a few as "features." The September number, however, is an exception to this rule, for while it contains the usual amount of interesting material, Barney Oldfield's long, illustrated article on automobile racing is certain to create a sensation and provoke comment—if not legislation—all over the country. Mr. Oldfield, probably the most experienced driver of fast cars in the world, and who declares he was never famous until he went through the fence at St. Louis and killed two spectators, accuses the public of blood-thirstiness, and the race-governing associations of greed. The writer is never abusive: Fact by fact, incident by incident, picture by picture, he pleads his case, resting it at

A Splendid Tonic.

Cora, Ky.—Mrs. Iva Moore, of this place, says, "I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results." Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It is certainly worth a trial. Your druggist sells Cardui.

the bar of American public opinion, which he declares, ceases to condone faults the moment the veil of pretended "virtue" or "progress" is torn away.

The September Popular Mechanics Magazine contains in all, 270 articles and 269 illustrations. In aeronautics, a page illustration depicts Lincoln Beachey's spectacular flight under the bridge at Niagara, and the important events of the month are summarized with terse comment and appropriate illustrations.

Not to Be Judged by Size.

An interesting and somewhat curious fact is that some of the tall men of genius have had moderate sized heads. Shelley, the poet, was tall, but had a small head, and some of the small men imbued with the divine spark had large heads, apparently proving that the size of the head has little to do with the quality of the brains.

SPARE MINUTE FOR THE EYES

Nothing Gives Eyes Such Complete Rest as Habit of Closing Them Occasionally.

If you will spare a minute every half hour to the eyes they may be spared to you many years in consequence.

A well-known oculist declares nothing gives the eyes such complete rest as the habit of closing them occasionally for a minute or two. In threatened cases of eyestrain he has sometimes advised no other cure and the patient has recovered his normal sight.

Where one uses the eyes constantly, especially for close work, as the woman who does fine sewing, embroidery or painting, the relief to eyes of lifting them from the work and closing them while one slowly counts twenty-five cannot be overestimated. Another rest is to change the point of vision from time to time. Look away from what you are doing and gaze blankly into space. Do not attempt to concentrate on anything. Merely look out of the window or into a distant corner of the room.

Do not begrudge the time for this eye resting. It is the best sort of investment you can make and will not take half as much time or money as visits to the oculist.

JONES GETS NAME IN TIME TABLE

Eccentric Man Wins Contest With Railroad---To Replace Cabin With Mansion.

Corydon, Ky., Aug. 14.—After fighting with the Illinois Central railroad for forty years to change the name of Highland station to that of Jonesboro, Robert A. N. Jones, who lives 12 miles below here, has gained a signal victory and in honor of the event has begun construction work on a $5,000 concrete mansion and is receiving bids for a hundred foot monument which will bear the inscription "Jonesboro" on the top.

When he has completed his mansion he will endeavor to secure a postoffice for Jonesboro.

He has lived in a three-room log cabin more than half a century and is regarded as the most eccentric citizen in Henderson county. His feud with the railroad dates from the time it was built in 1885, when, though the tracks ran through Jones, land, the village which sprang up was called Highland.

Jones tore down the Highland signs several times, placing others labeled "Jones Station" in their places. He said he was prepared to spend his entire fortune in an attempt to get the railroad to change the name of the station so that his family might be honored, and said that he would not replace his log cabin with a fine mansion until the name was changed.

The new time tables of the Illinois Central now recognize "Jonesboro," and carloads of concrete for the new mansion are being hauled into the place. Jones says he is serious about building a big monument to commemorate his victory, saying he has the price and the inclination.

CALLOWAY COUNTY

WITHOUT A JUDGE

Bondsmen of Patterson Surrender Him--Governor to Appoint.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 15.—In the Circuit Court at Murray, the new bondsmen offered by County Judge T. W. Patterson, who was recently surrendered by his bondsmen, were termed ineligible by Judge Hanbery and the office was declared vacant. Governor Willson will fill the office, presumably in a short time.

When Judge A. J. G. Wells was appointed a member of the Board of Control a few years ago, Judge Patterson was appointed his successor. Judge Patterson is a Republican and the county ordinarily is Democratic. Later Judge Patterson was elected to the office. A short time ago Judge Patterson in a published card stated that his bondsmen surrendered him owing to adverse decisions he had rendered against them in the County Court.

BATTLE HYMN OF THE RE-

PUBLIC

IS QUEEREST OF ANIMALS

Chameleon's Capabilities in Line of Changing Color, Contrary to Popular Belief, Are Limited.

It is popularly supposed that the chameleon possesses the power of assuming all the colors of the rainbow, but, as a matter of fact, its capabilities in that line are restricted, inasmuch as certain colors are quite beyond its attainment.

The chameleon can, however, pass through a series of yellows, grays, greens and browns until it reaches a color almost black; and, unlike the leopard, the chameleon can and does change its spots. The chief causes of these rapid changes are anger, excitement, fear, heat and cold.

In the full blaze of the summer sun the chameleon takes on a blackish hue, with pale, pinkish-yellow spots and a central stripe.

The chameleon presents, perhaps, the quaintest physical features in all animedom, for he resembles nothing so much as one of the medieval gargoyles, such as adorn the tower of Notre Dame. His toes, in their arrangement of three on one side and two of the other of each hand and foot, are most suggestive of a bird's as is also the manner in which they grasp the bough upon which the little fellow is resting or climbing. The expression of sardonic humor that seems to play about the mouth of the chameleon is curiously heightened by the weird effects of the independently moving eyes.

GENIUS NEAR TO INSANITY

Many Maladies Called Degeneracy Just Too Much of Highly Developed Nerves.

Where my eugenic friend goes wrong is in failing to realize that a great many of the maladies which he calls degeneracy are just too much of the highly developed nervous system which is the special endowment of the gifted families.

Overcharge the battery ever so little and genius becomes insanity; give one member of the family a volt too much and the delicate balance of physical and mental qualities on which sanity depends is broken down. Extinguish the family and you will rid the world of some degenerate, but you will also at the same time rob it of its most gifted men.

My eugenist would never have let Cowper, Lamb, Coleridge, Stevenson, Keats, Ruskin, Henley or De Quincey see the light.

The doctrine of heredity should never be forgotten by parents or remembered by children. To the first it is the assertion of their responsibility; to the second a reminder of their helplessness.—J. A. Spender in the Westminster Gazette.

MANY ARE MILDLY INSANE

Never Make Trouble Unless Opposed and Seldom Meet With Anything But Consideration.

"There are more mildly insane people at large in a big city like New York than the average person imagines," said an official of a downtown safe deposit company to a New York Sun man. "We have periodical visits from a richly dressed elderly lady who has the hallucination that her son is shut up in our vaults. We go through the same procedure every time. We have one of our men show her over the building and into the big vault. We treat her with every courtesy and finally convince her that she's made a mistake. If we opposed her there might be trouble, but by following this course she leaves us much happier than when she came in. I happen to know that at a certain bank a middle-aged man comes in at regular intervals and apologizes for having overdrawn his account. His family is well known at this institution and in order to satisfy him they sometimes have to accept a deposit, which of course they return to his family. They can't reason with him and to prevent a scene they let him do as he pleases. These unbalanced people never make any trouble unless they're opposed, and they seldom meet with anything but consideration."

SURVIVAL OF OLD NAMES

Nowhere Does Aboriginal Nomenclature Stick as It Does in Parts of New England.

In all countries the names of rivers, lakes, mountains and localities longest retain the traces of the language spoken by the earlier inhabitants. This is well illustrated throughout Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and in many parts of England itself, but nowhere is the survival of aboriginal names so general as in New England and some other sections of the country. Whenever one of these names is dropped, as has been done to some extent in the White mountain region, where good Indian names have been made to give place in too many instances to names bestowed in honor of individuals. If the practice had stopped with the five peaks of the Presidential range, it would have been much better. In the case of the village of Niantic, in Rhode Island, however, there appears to be no special occasion for regret, as there is another Niantic a few miles away, and this particular village was not originally Niantic anyway. It was changed from Charlestown to Dorreville, from Dorreville to Niantic, and has now been again changed to Bradford.

Checking Motion of Ship.
In actual practice the rolling of ships in the sea has been reduced from 11 per cent to 2 per cent, by the invention of Hens Frabm of Hamburg. His system makes use of water tanks extending through the hold transversely from one side of the boat to the other and the passage of the water from one side of the boat to the other actually checks the motion of the boat.

ROAD NOTICE.

The Attention of the Public is Called to Chapter 94, Section 1, Acts of 1910.

That it shall be unlawful for any one to obstruct the water tables of a Turnpike or any public road by putting a crossing either private or public road without providing a culvert or drain pipe of sufficient dimensions to carry the full value of water that may drain in this water table or to it so as not to impeded the full flow of water. It shall also be unlawful to plant trees, telephones poles or fence in or closer than two and one half feet of the outer edge of the ditch, so that a plow or machinery may be used in making, widening or deepening them. Any fencing, tree or stone falling into the water table or rolling down from above into it, shall be removed within five days by owner of the land of which the obstruction was a part or any person not an owner trimming trees or cutting weeds or briars or any person placing any other obstruction in water table, shall be liable for all damage done by turning water into road-bed, and also to a fine of two dollars for each day the obstruction has laid in the ditch longer than five days.

The above law will be enforced and all parties prosecuted for violation of same.

Respectfully,

E. W. COLEMAN,

Road Supervisor.

CAUSES OF SLEEP EXPLAINED

Frenchman Says It Is Inherited Instinct to Protect Organism From Effects of Fatigue.

At the National Museum for Natural History in Paris M. R. Legendre lately delivered an extremely interesting lecture on "The Physiology of Sleep," which summarizes the latest researches on the subject. He admitted at the outset that it was impossible to give an exact definition of sleep, which was to be distinguished from narcosis, hypnosis and lethargy, and devoted himself chiefly to investigating the cause of sleep, of which many explanations have been suggested. He showed by fairly conclusive arguments that this could be neither brain pallor, nor intoxication by carbonic acid, nor the presence of narcotic substances in the blood, theories which have had in their turn greater or less success; and finally avowed his preference for the view of Prof. Claparede of Geneva that sleep is not the result of fatigue but an inherited instinct designed to protect the organism against the ill effects of fatigue. He pointed out, however, that an injection of the cerebro-spinal (cephalo-rachidian) fluid from an animal suffering from insomnia would produce the same malady in one otherwise healthy; and that experiments were now being made to determine the toxic substance present in the fluid in question. Some of these experiments seem to show that the effect of sleep is limited to the brain and nerves.—The Athenaeum.

LESSON IN HARMONY SCORED

A woman who prides herself on her instinct for producing effective and harmonious combinations of color was called upon to admire a doll's toilet which her small daughter had just completed. Dolly's outfit comprised all the primary colors. There were no softening mezzotints to rest the tired eye as it roved from red to orange, and then wandered on blinking to be confronted by purple and green. It was hard for the aesthetic parent to believe any child of hers had such crude ideas as to what constituted decorative effect, but there was the doll in all its luridness to prove the sad fact. Thereupon mother proceeded to talk long and earnestly (in words of one syllable) on harmony in general and harmonious color combinations in particular.

That the seed did not fall on barren soil was proved an hour later when the latest recruit to art called out: "Oh, mother, do come to the window and see this boy. He is a black boy, mother, and he's riding a black horse. That shows that he has good taste, doesn't it, to pick out a horse of the same color?"

WATER LILY FARM.

One of the beauty spots in Washington is the water lily farm conducted by a woman who as a clerk in the treasury department lost her health. Starting as an amateur cultivator, she has become one of the most prosperous producers of the flowers. She purchased a few acres on the Potomac and caused an artificial lake to be made on her land by piping in the water. She became fascinated with the work, and willingly gave up her government position so she could devote her attention to the flowers. Now she has ponds which cover five acres, in which she is raising the flowers, and many persons go to her garden at early hours of the morning to see the lilies in full bloom.

WHEN SCHUMANN WAS SORE.

An amusing story of Schumann is told by a Vienna critic. The composer once accompanied his wife, who was even then a celebrated pianist, to the palace, when she went to play before the king of Holland, and was gratified by the monarch's compliments of her performance. The composer was somewhat surprised, however, when the king turned to him and courteously inquired: "Are you also musical?" They say Schumann was so indignant that he didn't speak for an hour.

GHOSTLY EXPLANATION.

Canterbury (Eng.) cathedral can boast of a real ghost—that of Becket, the murdered archbishop—who can clearly be seen from time to time in the crypt. This ghost has actually been photographed. A curious point is that, while one photograph shows a palpable figure of a prelate against a pillar, another photograph taken from the same spot, but on a different day, shows no such appearance. A probable explanation is that a fresco was formerly painted on the pillar, and subsequently painted out. Consequently when the weather is damp the figure becomes visible through the overlaid material, but on a dry day entirely disappears, or, in ghost language, vanishes.

GUM COLLARS.

Ham Wilson purchased four gum collars at a auction sale at the Co. seat last Wednesday for 25 cts. This is the first time we ever seen a gum collar. Ham says they beat paper collars all holler, because they last longer and you don't have to wash them more than once a month and then you can do it with a damp rag. It's a great wonder to us that Hen Weathersby, prop. of our general store, don't keep these gum collars for the human neck.—Bingville Bugle.

WRONG PLACE TO BUY MEAT

Absent-Minded Girl Is Distressed, but She Gave Joy to the Postal Clerks.

The absent-minded young woman emerged from the branch postoffice station with a flushed face and met a friend at the corner. "Oh, Stella," she exclaimed, "let me weep on your shoulder!"

"What's the matter this time?" "You may well say 'this time.' I am always wondering if I have yet done the most awful thing possible in the world, or if the worst is yet to come. When I left home a few minutes ago I intended to do two errands. One was to buy some postage stamps and the other was—well, just now I walked up to the stamp window and said blandly to the clerk, 'Please give me a pound and a half of lamb chops.' Do you wonder that I want to cry? Could anything be much worse? Fortunately, the clerk knows me. Of course he grinned and said, 'Not here, Miss Wander. The butcher's shop's in the next block.' Of course he'll tell all the other clerks, and of course I can't blame them for laughing. If I could be sure that this experience would cure me I could bear it better."

"Don't worry. Just think how much joy you have given the clerks. Count it a contribution to the gayety of nations and season your lamb chops with it. They will taste better and be more digestible than if watered with tears."

AFTER THE HONEYMOON

Mr. Newwed—I shall never, never love another woman as I love you.
Mrs. Newwed—I should hope not.
Mr. Newwed—You needn't to get so sore about it. I guess I could if I wanted to.

TEAMWORK POPULAR.

It is to my mind a matter of profound significance that our colleges and universities betray such enthusiasm over team games. At these institutions one would expect the spirit of scholasticism to be dominant. One would suppose that the high prize of public admiration would be given to those who competed most successfully in scholarship. I do not wish to minimize the honor of scholastic distinction or the rewards of those who win it, but I wish to call attention to the fact that the man who will live longest in the hearts of his comrades is the man who, playing in a team game, wins glory and renown for the college as a whole. He does not win as a brilliant player, primarily, but as an organic part of the unit—the team. The individual record-breaker in running and jumping wins no such position in the hearts of his fellow-students as the man who successfully leads a team to victory.—Lippincott's.

AN EXACTING SITUATION.

"Doctor," said the nervous man, "is there any way of teaching a person to talk in his sleep?" "I never heard of any," replied the physician. "How could such an accomplishment be of benefit?" "It's either that or insomnia for me. My wife is one of the best suffragette speakers before the public. She always rehearses her oration at home, and I've got to say 'Hear! hear!' or 'That's the stuff!' at least once every ten minutes."

GOING AND COMING.

"Prices in this country are disproportionate," said the man who has all kinds of trouble.

"What is your especial grievance?"

"You can send a letter for a two-cent stamp; and it may cost you fifteen or twenty thousand dollars to get it back."

BRITISH WOMEN AS PIONEERS

Dr. Ethel Smyth Has Opera Produced and Orchestra Contains Several Feminine Performers.

For the first time in the history of English music women have been heard in first-class orchestra. Dr. Ethel Smyth, the first woman to have an opera produced in England, is the pioneer of this project, and introduced a woman flautist and percussionist, as well as a woman at the drum, into the orchestra, which interpreted her varied and magnificent harmonies at a recent matinee at a London theater. Hitherto a woman harpist is the only feminine figure which has appeared in first-class orchestra, the harp being what Dr. Smyth describes as "an eminently ladylike instrument." She claims that women can look very pretty playing wind instruments, and that their femininity need not have any effect on the volume of sound they produce. The amount of noise is not a result necessarily of physique, but rather of intensity of feeling; this is Dr. Smyth's contention and in intensity it cannot be said the women are lacking. The songs in which these ladies were tested were extremely difficult and very modern, and have hitherto taxed the capacity of the first-class male performer to the utmost, but they stood the test admirably, and there seems no good reason why in future the symphony orchestra and its prototypes should not have the dull monotony of its black-coated music masters relieved by feminine frills.

HE WAS WISE.

Conductor (crowded street car)—Move forward, please!
Passenger—Not on your life. This lady sitting here is my wife, and if anyone sits in her lap it's going to be me. I'm wise to this road's curves, all right.

SURE CURE FOR SNORING.

To the snorers who ask for the cure let the cause be announced. Snoring is the result of stomache repletion and mental vacuity. A correspondent who has suffered from both prescribes the cure. A light supper—or none—to avoid repletion, and the frequent repetition of some literary phrase to provide occupation for the mind during sleeping hours. Go to bed fasting and think of some short literary phrase to occupy your mind. The combination of the two prescriptions against snoring—the abstention from food and the meditation upon the literary phrase—may be found in Ecclesiasticus—the nineteenth verse of the thirty-first chapter: "How sufficient to a well-mannered man is a very little, and he doth not breathe hard upon his bed."

IKU'S DEPARTURE.

The departure of the arch-criminal Iku from Pekin to exile is described as rivaling in splendor that of the most distinguished envoy to foreign parts. All the unoccupied great ones of Pekin "saw him off," he took four cooks and twenty servants with him, and left behind with each servant's family a solatium of fifty ounces; moreover each servant had to "sign on" and secure "bail" for good behavior. "It pays to be a traitor."—Westminster Gazette.

HABIT.

"There's no use talking," said Mr. Dustin Stax; "this corporation of ours will have to dissolve."
"How will you go about it?"
"I don't know. The only way I know of to dissolve things is to keep putting water into them."

CALCULATIONS.

"Thank heaven air is still free," said the gloomy person.
"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "But an automobile tire to surround a small section of it costs a heap."

Watch The Moguls Take Three Straights From Vincennes.

PENNANT RAISING FIRST.

Paducah Will Not Be Replaced By Evansville At Once.

HOW THEY STAND.
	W	L	Pct
Fulton	19	6	760
Hopkinsville	17	8	680
Cairo	16	10	615
Vincennes	14	12	538
Jackson	10	15	400
Henderson	10	16	385
Clarksville	9	17	346
Paducah	8	19	296

Monday's Games.

Paducah 3; Vincennes 2.
Jackson 6; Cairo 1.
Hopkinsville 3; Clarksville 1.
Fulton-Henderson (wet grounds.)

Tuesday's Games.

Hopkinsville 3, Clarksville 1.
Vincennes 9, Paducah 0. (Forfeit.)
Cairo 6, Jackson 3.
Fulton 2 0, Henderson 1-4.

The Moguls took Monday's game with Beasley in the box and repeated the performance Tuesday with McArthur pitching. The last game was played yesterday at Clarksville with Johnson on the slab. Tuesday after the game Manager Doubles and Charlie Gosnell assaulted and beat up Umpire Weber, it is reported for causing Doubles out on a third strike.

The Vincennes team comes to-day for three games. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the Champion Moguls will be presented with the League pennant and in the absence of President Dorton the response will be made by Attorney John Stites.

Evansville was dropped from the Central league Saturday and is now without baseball. No sooner had President Gosnell of the Kitty heard this than he began investigations to ascertain whether Evansville can be secured as Kitty league territory. In case it can be secured it is said that the Paducah franchise will be transferred to Evansville at once. President Gosnell is in Paducah today but it is not known whether it is in reference to the Evansville deal—Capitol.

Bunts And Flies.

Dick Wilson, the new third base man, from Marion, Ind., arrived yesterday and will be in the game to-day. He has been hitting around 300 in the Northern Indiana league.

Nichols, the "phenomenal" pitcher of the Paducah team, got two successive defeats this week and drops into the class of pitchers ranking second to Yon, Johnson, McArthur and Beasley.

Cairo has released pitcher Gwin. Clarksville heads the list with 19 homeruns.

Jackson won its first game, played at Cairo Monday.

No game at Fulton Monday, on account of wet grounds.

Hopkinsville is gradually coming again into its own.

A Hopkinsville player, (Lyons) the first part of the season, broke the world's record with seven hits in seven times up, but had the advantage of batting against an easy pitcher. Gwendolyn Taylor, of Cairo, made four hits in four times up Saturday off of Beck, of Henderson, when altogether the rest of the players on the local team only got three hits which was really the best record in the league so far this season. —Cairo Bulletin.

Forster Red Hurst, who has been third base for Hopkinsville, was released at Clarksville yesterday.

Manager Nairn has come to terms with third baseman Nairn, who is expected daily.

FLY TIME

has arrived again. Every horse owner should know that

Fly Nets Are Cheaper than oats. It requires feed to produce energy, and it takes energy to fight flies. The price paid for fly nets is saved many times on the amount of feed needed, to say nothing about the comfort of your horses. See the little prices at which we are selling cotton mesh and cord nets; also leather nets.

PADUCAH LOSES FORFEIT

By Failing To Play The Game Tuesday.

Paducah failed to play Tuesday, not having enough money to pay the $50 guaranty, and forfeited $500 on deposit as a guarantee to finish the season.

President C. C. Gosnell has spent two days in Paducah and regards the future in Paducah as so uncertain that in all probability the Paducah franchise will be transferred to Evansville, Ind.

The Evansville Courier of yesterday said: "The league president has been in Paducah, Ky., for the last few days in efforts to adjust financial difficulties with the league owners in that town."

He reports that unless Paducah business men raise necessary funds by to-morrow night to retain the franchise, the Paducah team will be brought to this city providing Evansville business men raise $700 as a guarantee fund.

Evansville business men have not as yet arranged a meeting to receive President Gosnell. In fact they believe the Kitty president should have enough confidence in the city to place a team here without a guarantee. Evansville is about three times the size of the largest cities in the Kitty league."

PADUCAH STAYS IN.

Paducah made itself O. K. yesterday and will play out the schedule. Will be here Monday.

The little Moguls went down to Cadiz Thursday and Friday and beat the Night Riders three out of four games. In the first two games the Cadiz boys never had a look in, the Hoptown boys shutting them out. The last two were hitting contests in which the teams broke even. Mitchell of Hopkinsville pitched a no hit and a one hit game and struck out nineteen in both games. Waller also pitched fine ball but errors lost one of his games. For Cadiz Woodruff won his game.

The scores—
Cadiz..... 1. 2. 3. 4.
Hoptown..... 0. 0. 4. 4.
Hoptown..... 7. 3. 3. 6.

PRINCESS THEATRE,
Friday, Aug. 18th.
CATTLE HYMN OF THE RE-

Name And Lingo.

An exchange offers the following description of a baseball game:

The game opened with Molasses at the stick and Measles catching. Cigars was at the bat with plenty of smoke.

Horn on first base and Fiddle on second, backed by Corn in the field made it hot for Umpire Apple who was rotten.

Ax came to the bat and chopped Cigars let Brick walk and Sawdust filled the bases. Song made a hit and twenty made a score. Cigar went out and Balloon started to pitch, but went straight up. Then Cherry tried it but was wild. Old Ice kept Coal in the game until he was hit by a pitched ball. Then you ought to have heard Ice cream. Cabbage had a good head and kept quiet. Grass covered lots of ground in the field and the crowd cheered when spider caught a fly.

Bread loafed on third and pumped Organ, who played fast and put eight out.

In the fifth inning Wind began to blow about what he could do. Hammer began to knock and trees began to leave. The way they roasted Pen-nuts was a fright. Knife was called out for cutting bases. Lightning finished pitching the game and struck out six men.

In the ninth Apple told Fiddle to take his base. Oats was shocked and song made another hit. Trombone made a slide for third and Meat was put on the plate.

BULL SIGNS COSTLY.

When the 1911 season opened, there was much talk of the new batting records, which would go up owing to the "New Ball" concerning which there has been so much talk all year. And there is one concern in these United States which can vouch for the fact that the "New Ball" has done more than create a lot of talk.

Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Company, the owners of the herds of Bulls, which are grazing in almost all the Baseball parks throughout the country, have finally reached the conclusion that the "New Ball" is made of "Injer" rubber, instead of all the yarn etc. which the manufacturers claim.

The reason for the Tobacco Company's claim rests on the records which have been made on the 186 Bull Durham Signs which they have. During the present season these signs have been hit 138 times, which counts up to $6900.00 which has to meet the "New Balls" squarely.

In these parks where the Bulls appear there have been 2460 home runs made, which four base hits have been the means of the heavy hitters receiving free Bull Durham to the extent of 11070 pounds.

A special account of the doings in the K. I. T. LEAGUE is given here-with.

Anybody Can Clean Silver This Way

I'm sure—says the LITTLE HOUSEWIFE. There's no "fussing" with dirty, mussy, injurious "pastes" or powders, no rubbing or "real work" of any kind. It's so much quicker, better and more satisfactory, in every way, than any other Method that you'll really enjoy using the

This truly wonderful little home labor-saving device is very simple, yet extremely durable in construction. It quickly and thoroughly cleans any silver-ware of black and tarnish—without defacing, marring or scratching, or removing one particle of silver—and leaves it bright and new.

The SILVER-CLEAN PAN is a scientific combination of electro-chemical metals. Hot water, with ordinary baking soda and salt, is placed in the PAN—and the silver merely immersed and left for a few minutes—then taken out and wiped dry, when every trace of tarnish will have been removed—WITHOUT RUBBING OR SCOURING.

Thousands of housewives use the SILVER-CLEAN PAN—and what once was a dreaded task is now a pleasure.

Hotels, clubs, restaurants and dining cars also employ the PAN. The household size, No. 1, single, (with full, simple directions). Shipped on free trial, express prepaid, for only $1.25. If not found entirely satisfactory, we will pay return charges and refund the purchase price. Beware of imitations. None genuine without grid see arrow. Labels and other forms in silver-ware. The "Silver-Clean" does not.

Improved Conditions in France. Statisticians now count on the survival to maturity of 70 out of every 100 male children born in France, instead of 67 a few years ago.

A Way to Slip In. "It's my opinion de millionnaires won't storm de gates o' glory, but you'll hear many of 'em axin' some poor soul: 'Whar is dat crack in de fence what I hearn folks talkin' 'bout?' "—Atlanta Constitution.

The Voice of Experience. The oleomargarine dealers tell us that there is more real virtue in their product than in butter. Yet we have known considerable butler that seemed amply able to resist temptation. It certainly was strong enough—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Liniment. One cup vinegar, one cup turpentine, one raw egg, put in bottle and shake well. A most excellent liniment for man or beast.

She Was Not Surprised. "Weren't you sorry when you heard that Tolstoi was dead?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle. "Yes," replied her hostess, as she pushed a $900 bracelet up on her left arm. "but it was not at all surprisin'. Folks that go up in them things are always sure to get a fall sooner or later."

Sex Equality. Counting nibbling, a woman eats just about as much as a man.—Atchafson Globe

Time to Die. "When is the best time to die?" gravely asks a contemporary. "Just before you try to introduce an old friend to an acquaintance and can't remember his name."

Moving Spirit of Today. Petrol, which may be described as the moving spirit of the age, is being applied so freely nowadays to locomotion generally that future generations will probably wonder however we managed to get along without it.

Occupation for Women. Two women, maybe more, occupy novel positions in the business world in New York. These women are employed by a number of wholesale dress goods and millinery houses to entertain women buyers from out of town. They entertain the visitors at dinner, in the theater, and make the sojourners' stay in New York pleasant. The expense, of course, is charged to the houses employing them. The individual charges of these women entertainers usually are about one-fourth of the total expense.

MISERERE

From Verdi's "Il Trovatore" As sung by the rising young Tenor

Riccardo Martin at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York

Andantino molto sostenuto.

NOT A SUNDAY OCCUPATION

Doctor's Little Boy Warned Bishop Williams to Look at Picture Book "On the Sly."

The late Bishop Williams of Connecticut was very fond of children, and it was always a joy to his young friends, says a writer in Harper's Magazine, when he came for his annual visit to his father's parish. His anecdotes and stories enlivened the household. Once, when he was staying with us, he told the following story:

"One Sunday morning, just after breakfast, I reported to the rector's study, where I was soon followed by his little four-year-old son, who climbed up on my knee and began to talk. Suddenly the little fellow looked up into my face and said: 'Bishop, do you want to see my picture book?'"

"Yes, indeed," said I. So the child slid down and started to get the book. When half way across the room a sudden idea seemed to strike him, and running back and putting one hand on my knee, he looked up in my face and shook his little forefinger at me, whispering, 'Bishop, it's Sunday. We must do as on ze sly.'"

DODGING THE NEIGHBORS.

Husband—There is nothing left; the wolf will soon be at the door.
Wife—I hope he will know enough to get to the back one.

THACKERAY'S CARELESSNESS.

The high value set upon the Thackeray manuscripts now on exhibition at the Charterhouse contrasts with the carelessness with which the great novelist himself sometimes treated his "copy." A great deal of "Philip" was written at the Athenaeum club, and one day, when he had completed the manuscript of a number for the printer, Thackeray laid it down in the cloak room and forgot it. That evening a messenger arrived at his house for the copy, but Thackeray was dining out. Next morning he rushed down to the club in desperate anxiety, and after an exciting search the manuscript was discovered in the dustman's box, into which it had been swept by a housemaid.

TRAINING FOR MATRIMONY.

As a means of remedying the divorce evil several speakers recently in a convention of the Allied Charities of Indianapolis suggested children should be taught early about marriage, its duties and its sacredness. They said if children were trained as rigorously in the meaning of divorce as some are in their religious duties, they would grow up to understand marriage should not be entered into lightly and that divorces are wrong. Charles W. Moore of that city spoke in that vein, saying that "people marry heedlessly, and do not understand the real spiritual meaning of the marriage relation." He adds boys and girls should be trained carefully.

DOUBTFUL.

"I suppose you read my speech," said the statesman.
"Yes," replied the constituent. "I saw it in the Record."
"Did you find it interesting?"
"In a way. I've kind of got a curiosity to see the audience that provided all the laughter and applause you've got marked in it."—Washington Star.

HELPS THE DOWN-AND-OUTS

Nurse in Free Ward of Hospital Finds New Use for Post Cards.

"Wait a minute!" said the nurse to the non-paying hospital patient, who had received his discharge. Her writing finished, she gave several postal cards to him. "These are addressed to me," she said. "Take them and let me know from time to time how you are getting on. I shall always be interested in you."

A week later the first of that particular series was added to her already large collection of cards. "Sacred to the memory of former free patients," ought to be the inscription on this book," she said. "Every card in it was received from patients who were down and out when they left the hospital. To all such convalescents I give half a dozen cards addressed to myself and ask them to keep me informed of their movements until they get on their feet. Many of them go out into the world feeling lonely and friendless, and only for those cards, which remind them that there is at least one person anxious to hear from them, they would entirely lose their feeble grip of life."

NORWAY IS PROUD OF IBSEN
Great Author is Highly Esteemed, but the Whole Country Loves Bjornsterne.

I was talking with a cultivated young Norwegian in Christiania one day, a man of cosmopolitan education with a beautiful American wife, at whose table I had the pleasure of meeting the American minister and the ex-consul and their ladies and others of the diplomatic circle. Conversation naturally drifted to Ibsen. My host showed natural pride in him, and his assurance of a dignified literary style lost in translation, even of flashes of humor untranslatable, was interesting, if somewhat formal. But it had not occurred to me to question the place the great man held in his esteem until later in the evening, when I chanced to ask somewhat of Bjornsterne. Instantly his manner changed.

There was magic in the name, and his whole being responded. Before answering in words, he rushed over to his book shelf, and brought in his arms a set of the books of the man whom Norway loves.—Ruth McEnery Stuart, in Harper's Bazar.

RIVERS AND CIVILIZATION.

The first civilizations developed in river valleys, where water transport in one direction at least is very easy. The next stage was that which saw man settled on the shores of the great inland sea and witnessed his gradual acquisition of greater and greater skill in navigation. As we have seen, he was soon not content with that sea alone, but launched out into the open, and, hugging the coast line, found his way to far Britain. Only at a very much later date, however, did he conquer the vast Atlantic outside, which, as Professor Myers points out, has now become a mere inland sea in its turn, when compared with the greater oceans beyond. To this day, however, the part which water transport plays in human life is reflected in the way in which the denser masses of mankind cluster round the shores of the seas, oceans, as any map of the distribution of population will show.—M. I. Newbigin: "Modern Geography."

LARGE "CONSCIENCE FUND."

Just a century ago the "conscience fund" of the United States treasury received its first contribution. A record has been kept of every penny that has found its way to the fund, the grand total amounting at present to practically half a million dollars. The largest single amount ever received by the treasury officials was $18,665.60, from some one whose identity has never been revealed. In his brief note of explanation he stated that the sum represented the duty on goods which he smuggled into the country at different times.

Two Hundred Cash Down

By CLARA INEZ DEACON

Mr. Bob Campbell had gone up to the mountain resort with full five hundred dollars in his pocket, and a liberal balance was left in the bank after he had drawn that sum. Mr. Chalmers dabbled a little in paints and oils. Some folks referred to him as an artist, but he never claimed the title. He said he just dabbled and dabbled because it helped loaf the time away.

Mr. Chalmers did not seek the mountains because it was fashionable. The doctor recommended it as a cure for dyspepsia. He did not take three or four trunks and seven or eight changes of clothing, but only one, and a rather small one at that. He just wanted an easy, loafing time of it for two or three weeks, and he hoped to meet no one he knew. In this hope he was not disappointed. All were strangers to him, and no one sought to break through his aloofness. In fact, he was so severely left alone that the manager of the hotel began to take notice. There had been two or three dead beats at that caravansary, and was this another? Was it misanthropy, or was it fear of the bill to be presented when the week was up?

Mr. Chalmers hadn't folded his five hundred dollars in to an envelope and written his name and the amount and asked the clerk to take care of it. Had he done so he could have looked and acted like a pickpocket or room robber, and the office would have stood by him.

The dabbler in paints and oils had had no occasion to use much money during the week. When Saturday came he felt for his wealth to find it gone. In his scrambles over the mountain he had lost it, and it would be like looking for a needle in a haystack to go out and search for it. Five hundred dollars is worth worrying about. For less than that sum people have upset a whole hotel and have had two hundred guests looking at each other with suspicion. Instead of shouting his loss through the halls and on the verandas, Mr. Chalmers loafed along down to the office and stated it to the manager and asked his advice about writing out some reward notices and posting them about the grounds.

"I have known them to do that!" was the ironical reply.

"What do you mean, sir?"

"I have known them to do that, but no one ever succeeded in finding the lost sum!"

"You seem to intimate, sir—you seem to intimate—"

"That if you don't pay your bill you will be arrested as a fraud! There is a law to cover the case!"

Mr. Chalmers haughtily asked the amount and wrote out a check on his city bank and tossed it over. The manager simply pointed to the sign of "No Checks Cash."

"I will telephone my bank to send me up a few hundreds."

"And you know, of course, that the line has been down two days!"

"See here, man, I don't like this kind of talk! I came up here with five hundred dollars and have lost it. That doesn't break me. If your down to the railroad in the bus and telegraph my bank. Do I look like a hotel beat?"

"I shall object to your going to the railroad, except with the sheriff, and as for your looks I have nothing to say. It's my money I want. You'd better look around and see if you can't borrow it."

It was no use for Mr. Chalmers to raise a row, though he trembled with indignation. A row would only call everybody's attention to him and his embarrassing situation. Borrow? Of whom, when he had not seen the face of an acquaintance? Even if permitted to go to the railroad station alone the bank would be closed at noon of the day. As to taking French leave, he hadn't money enough to pay his fare ten miles. Then what to do and how to get out of it?

Mr. Chalmers wandered away to find a quiet retreat and think. He may have been followed at a distance by some hotel clerk provided with a police whistle to give the alarm in case he bolted. The quiet retreat was found half a mile away, but the dabbler had not occupied it ten minutes when a good-natured looking fat man came along and plumped himself down and said he wished he had gone to the seashore instead.

A fat man always reminds others of good cheer—of money to buy good cheer with. He looked easy to borrow of. Strange thoughts entered the head of Mr. Chalmers as he glared at the intruder. Should he tell his tale and try to borrow? Should he take him by the throat and command him to give up? Should he kill him and despoil the body and bury it beside the big rock? And all the time the fat man had been casting furtive glances at the dabbler, as if seeking to place him in his memory. He finally slapped his leg and laughed and cried out:

"Got you at last! Your name is Chalmers!"

"Well?"

"You paint portraits and things."

"Well?"

"Well, you painted my portrait about three years ago. My name is Gregg. Funny you didn't know me at first sight, after so many sittings."

"Yes, and you must excuse me, Mr. Gregg. Yes, I ought to have recognized you at once, but—but—"

"But you were meditating?"

"Yes. I am in a little trouble."

"Glad of that, for I always like to advise. Just go ahead and tell me all about it."

It was a humiliating thing to do, but it was done, and Mr. Gregg enjoyed every word of it. When the tale was finished he said:

"Chalmers, I'll make a bargain with you. I paid you three hundred dollars for that portrait, but it's so execrable I never hung it up. If you'll agree to never paint another I'll lend you two hundred more."

Mr. Chalmers wasn't hurt a bit. He had always said he was no artist, and that he pitied the buyers of his portraits and landscapes. He reached his hand for the bills, and Mr. Gregg passed them out and added:

"Two hundred dollars, and I'll introduce you to my daughter Molly besides. Here she comes. Molly, this is Mr. Bob Chalmers, who I have just hired to do no more portrait painting. He'll tell you why while I move on."

Life had suddenly changed for the dabbler. No more suspicious—no more dead beats—no more sheriffs! He even felt that his case of dyspepsia was fleeing. He even laughed about the bargain he had just closed. And that evening when the fat Mr. Gregg asked his daughter how she liked the young man, she replied:

"Say, Daddy, you were real mean and cruel. He's the very artist I had picked out to paint my own portrait."

"He'll make a mess of it, dear."

"But I'm sure he won't."

"But look at mine."

"Yes, but you are so big and fat, and then you fell over the picture and stuck your foot through the canvase before it was ready to hang."

"There, there—have you way about it. I'll get that two hundred dollars back six months hence when he comes to ask me to be his father-in-law!"

THE DECEIVER.

TWIST THAT MADE THE ROPE

In March of Labor-Saving Invention Rope-Making Machine Was Last on List.

There is nothing more prosaic than a rope, or that enters into a greater number of homely occupations; and yet in the march of labor-saving invention, a rope-making machine was one of the last on the list. So long, indeed, did rope-making remain one of the manual arts that the name of the place where the work was done has become ingrained in popular speech; and the rope factory, though in no way meriting the appellation, is still known in some quarters as the "rope-walk."

Formerly it was considered a fact worthy of note that the government rope-walk at Boston could turn out a rope 1,020 feet long.

A young workman in a rope-walk saw that the twist should be applied to the rope instead of the strands, if machinery was to take the place of the hand in rope-making, and he realized fame and fortune from the conception. His opportunity came with the proposition to grapple for the broken ends of the Atlantic submarine cable in the sixties.

A rope fully 12,000 feet long was required for the grappling, but the task of making one of this unheard-of length could not be undertaken seriously by any rope-maker then in the business.

At this juncture John Good came forward with a proposition to build machinery from his own designs and make a rope in one piece as long as was wanted.

The offer seemed a bold one, but was accepted. The machinery was built, the rope made, the break in the cable found and repaired, and telegraphic communication between the old world and the new established.

WOMAN HAS A GREAT IDEA

Flat Dweller Proves the Old Saying That Necessity is Mother of Invention.

We are told that necessity is the mother of invention, and one feminine flat-dweller is willing to take a lot of credit for her own particular achievement. With two big wardrobes and a closet to her bedroom she was yet without room for her big hats and dresses. There were hats to the left of her, hats to the right of her—and dresses likewise.

So she conceived an idea. It is nothing more nor less than an underbed wardrobe and an underbed hat box made in the form of a long flat box mounted on four wooden wheels. The wardrobe holds several dresses that can be packed away full length without crushing. It is easily stowed away, and being fitted with brass handles at the sides and front, it is quite simply wheeled from under the bed when wanted. The hat box is made on the same principle, only it has iron rollers instead of wheels. One of her hats has very high trimming and that reposes in the top of her wardrobe. Both these underbed wardrobes are stained mahogany to match the furniture.

Soaps in Panama.

All soaps imported here for laundry, scrubbing, and ordinary bath purposes come from England and the United States, the former exporting to Colon during 1910 $20,210 worth, while the amount from the United States was only $2,487. It has not been possible to obtain from the customs the value of the medicated and perfumed soaps imported into Colon, these being included under the item of drugs, but inquiries made of the druggists and dealers therein establish the fact that the United States sells more medicated soap than England, while France sells more perfumed soap than either the United States or England. From the foregoing, it is seen that England leads in the sale of laundry, scrubbing, and plain toilet soaps, with the United States second; the United States leads in the sale of medicated soap, with England second; France leads in the sale of perfumed soap, with the United States second.—From Consul James C. Kellogg, Colon.

Hiding Dimples.

Nobody but the woman herself knew how bad she felt, but the beauty doctor knew how bad she wanted to make other people think she felt.

"Wanted to know if there wasn't some way to remove dimples, or at least to fill them up so they wouldn't show while she was in mourning," he said. "Three mighty pretty dimples, she had, too, one in each cheek and one in her chin. My diagnosis was that a gift of nature like that could not be hidden. The woman seemed genuinely sorry."

"It looks so frivolous," she said, "to show dimples every time you open your mouth in mourning."

"That is what I call sorrowing some, even for a widow."

Tit for Tat.

When making out his laundry list the methodical man set down opposite each item the amount of money he should claim if the article were lost. One week the laundryman lost a shirt valued at $1. Without protest he deducted 85 cents from the month's bill.

"What's the matter with that other 15 cents?" demanded the methodical man. "Why don't I get that?"

"We kept that to pay for our work," the laundryman replied. "We had already washed and ironed the shirt."

WHAT THE GUEST SHOULD BE

Cheerful, Adaptable Man or Woman Will Leave Happy Memory Behind on Leaving.

With the advent of summer comes the beginning of the period when the distinction and the pleasure of being a guest comes to a great many men and women. With the ready assimilation of the American people we have taken that exotic phrase, "the weekend," to our common usage. And whether we are invited to go sailing in a hundred-dollar catboat, roughing it literally in a shanty called a bungalow, or enjoying the luxuries of a rich friend's country estate, we are all week-ending with the same catholicity of spirit that we show in the national habit of carrying suit cases. Hospitality has two faces—those of the host and the guest. And the most difficult one to present with an attractive mien is that of the latter estate. Cheerfulness is the most desirable characteristic of the ideal guest and second to this comes a readiness of spirit to enter any plan for the day or the night's pleasure. The adaptable man or woman is the one dearest to a host's heart; and you may pluck the reward of your entertainer's gratitude by your readiness to wash dishes as by your tolerance of a dub player at tennis or bridge in more luxurious surroundings. We all of us pay our way through the world through other mediums than that of the currency of the realm. None does this more certainly than the guest who leaves a happy memory behind him.—Philadelphia Press.

NOVELTY IN LETTER WRITING

How the Ignorant Factory Girl Managed to Accept an Offer of Marriage.

One Englishwoman relates rather a pretty story about a factory girl's way of answering a marriage proposal made to her. Of course it happened long, long ago.

The young woman could not write or read writing, and one day, says the lady, she brought a letter to me to read it for her. It contained an offer in marriage.

I happened to know that the writer was a deserving young artisan, so I said to her, "Now, you must consider this matter very seriously, and if you like to come to me when you have made up your mind, I will write a reply for you."

A day or two afterward I met the girl again, and asked her if she wanted me to answer the letter for her.

"O, that is all right," said the girl, looking radiant and pleased. "I've settled it; I answered it myself."

"Why, how did you do it?" I asked.

And then she told me that she could make a capital "I," and that she stuck on the paper a piece of wool after it for "will"—"I will."

Surely one of the quaintest acceptances of an offer in marriage ever penned.

Curious Neighbors Felled.

A wealthy New York society woman has recently become very much interested in city missionary work. In her district is a poor but respectable family named Moriarty, living on the top floor rear of a tenement house in a congested east side street.

Every time she has visited the Moriarty's she has been much annoyed by the staring and whispering of the other occupants of the building. The other day she spoke to Mrs. Moriarty about it.

"Your neighbors seem very curious to know who and what I am," she remarked.

"They do so," acquiesced Mrs. Moriarty.

"Do they ask you about it?"

"Indeed they do, ma'am."

"And do you tell them?"

"Faith, thin, an' Oi do not. Oi list soy you're me dressmaker, an' let it go at that."—Metropolitan Magazine.

A Polite Acknowledgment.

After a "command" performance in Queen Victoria's time it was the custom for her majesty's secretary to send a letter of thanks to the responsible manager. Sir Henry Ponsonby, upon whom this duty devolved, was the soul of politeness and, not wishing to make any invidious distinction, drew up one form of letter. On the whole this plan worked well, but on one occasion the proprietor of a troupe of performing geese, which had entertained the royal children at a Windsor garden party, received the following communication from Sir Henry: "Sir—I am instructed by the queen to thank you for your visit of yesterday, and to express the hope that the ladies and gentlemen of your company arrived safely in London and in good health!"

The Last Luxury.

Ten-year-old Arthur had been telling impressively of the number of servants employed in his home. He continued: "And our house is fixed so that if you want a drink, or a window raised, or to go upstairs, or anything, all you have to do is to pull a chain!"

"But what do you want with so many servants in that sort of a house?" asked one of his hearers.

"Oh," replied Arthur, "we have the servants to pull the chains."—Judge.

The Good Meal Assured.

Mistress—I have some friends coming to dinner today, Mary, so I want you to cook your very best.

Cook—You can depend on me, ma'am; I've got some friends of me own coming too.

LIFE PERIODS AND CLOTHES

How a Man's Tastes in Raiment Differ From Youth to Careless Old Age.

It is interesting to follow a man in the matter of his raiment. There are established periods in his life where his tastes differ, and his ways differ, and from start to finish the matter is one of considerable interest.

When he is under age and at college, his taste runs riot in the matter of clothing. Weird checks, fearful plaids, remarkable cuts of balloon-like pants and box-like coats appeal to him. The matter of a quarter inch in length of a coat concerns him greatly, and he begins to have his pants pressed with four creases in them, pointing to the north, south, east and west.

When he goes to work he carries some of this wonderful raiment with him. It is a link that connects him with glad college days. But the link wears out, and he is busy, and presently you see him in wholly different attire. He is neat enough, but his weird taste has changed.

He now goes in for business suits and is painfully exact in his dress for the evening. But as he gets along in business he ceases to have his clothing pressed. He marries and his wife keeps after him to put on a clean collar. He has long ceased to wear shoes for looks and has his shoes made to order because he likes 'em to be 4 17-18 inches wide at the toe in order to obtain comfort. He has them shined whenever any event comes along and reminds him of it.

And finally his whole family leap upon him. They call him slouchy, and when he gets a new suit it is a family matter in which the individual views of the family combine, and his own are lost. For it's always that way, and probably always will be.—Galveston News.

MARY STUART'S BLACK PEARL

Story of Accidental Recovery of the Scottish Queen's Necklace in a Little Shop.

A remarkable story appears in a Paris contemporary of the discovery of the black pearl necklace of Mary Queen of Scots, which disappeared on February 8, 1587. We give the story as we find it.

A lady cyclist had a mishap with the cord of her pince-nez while touring in an obscure town in Scotland. The lady pulled up at the general shop and tried to replace the cord. The shopkeeper, not having a suitable cord, told the lady he would take the wire from an old necklace which he showed her.

She, being struck with it, said she would buy it at the price asked—12s. 6d.—and do as best she could for a cord. On reaching her lodgings the lady cleaned the pearls and was struck with their beauty.

The lady's next procedure was to submit the necklace to an expert jeweler, who pronounced the pearls to be of very great value, and the Paris contemporary from which we have taken the story says they are worth at least £15,000, adding that on the day of the execution the unfortunate queen of Scotland divided among her women who attended her ornaments and jewels, including the necklace of black pearls. How it passed into the hands of the ancestors of the shopkeeper is a mystery.

Too Much Ceremony.

A Cincinnati drummer happened to be put at a table at Columbus with a number of legislators, and the courtly way in which they addressed each other greatly bored the commercial traveler. It was: "Will the gentleman from Hardin do this?" and "the gentleman from Franklin do that?" They invariably spoke to each other as the gentleman from whatever county they happened to hail from.

For 10 or 15 minutes the drummer bore it in silence.

Then he suddenly crushed the statesmen by singing out in stentorian tones to the waiter: "Will the gentleman from Ethiopia please pass the butter!" That ended the "gentleman from business."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Physical Limitations.

There was a very stupid play presented early in the New York season, an "adaptation" it was called by the author. Even the best-natured critics went away in disgust. One newspaper representative turned to another and said: "If this jumble had been presented on the other side of the water it would have been hissed. As there were a lot of foreign visitors present I wonder that it was not."

"It really is a wonder," was the other's reply. "I would like to have hissed myself, but—you can't yawn and hiss at the same time."—Metropolitan Magazine.

His Wonderful Memory.

"Excuse me," said the absent-minded professor, "but haven't we met before?"

"Why, yes," replied the beautiful girl. "Our hostess introduced us just before dinner tonight."

"Ah, I remember! I never forget a face!"—Stray Stories.

A Trace of Egotism.

"My constituents never fail to accord me continuous applause," remarked Senator Borghum, hopefully.

"Yes," replied Farmer Cornstassel. "A lot o' folks on our way would rather hear themselves cheer than listen to another man talk."

CURIOUS TRAITS OF ANIMALS

Peculiar Habits of Flies, Hens, Mice, Snakes and Goldfish, Some of Them Unexplainable.

A fly on a window pane will crawl to the top, fly back to the bottom and crawl up again. This order is seldom reversed. Why, no one knows, it is on record that a fly crawled up a window pane thirty-two times, returning each time a-wing.

Hens scratch for food with the sun behind them, the reason being that the rays reflect on the minute particles. A blind hen will pick grain and not miss a kernel.

Cats seldom lie with their feet to the fire. Usually they lie on the left side. Dogs lie with their fore paws to the fire.

A mouse will ignore a food supply sufficient for a meal and run great risks to nibble at a wholesale supply, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. It will hide at the source of food supply and not depart therefrom until actually disturbed. It isn't true that a mouse runs to a hole at the first alarm.

Find a harmless little snake the length of a lead pencil and provide a box for it in the house, visit it daily, and at the end of three months it will crawl to you for food.

Goldfish usually swim around a globe to the right. They can be taught to take a fly out of the hand in six weeks' time. The presence of other fish in the globe is generally ignored by goldfish. Drop a piece of chip on the surface of the water and it will frighten a fish.

"SEA FRUIT" IS DELICIOUS

Many Little Shellfish of the Mediterranean of Which the French Make Good Use.

Fruits de mer ("sea fruit"), this is the comprehensive name by which the numerous little shellfish of the Mediterranean are known; the term, affectionate if you will, which the French use in speaking of these contributions of the sea which are at their best in Marseilles and all along the Riviera, over the border into sunny Italy.

Marseilles is the great fish market of southern France and Leghorn of northern Italy, while Naples of course is the center for southern Italy. Along the quays of all three cities an epicure on his rambles will find much of interest and many a new sensation for his palate.

Bouillabaisse, even before it was made famous in literature by Thackeray, was considered the piece de resistance of southern France and maitre-otté de poisson a close second. But for my part the most luscious morsels of the fruits of the blue Mediterranean are the little shellfish which are sold from the booths along the quays or in the open air kitchens where amid odors of garlic and a whiff of the salt air from the sea, and of great masses of wet seaweed upon which the shellfish are temptingly arranged make the nostrils dilate even as the sight of the seductive wares tickle the palate and force one to stop and investigate.—Epicure.

Small Republics.

Klein-Alp is a diminutive republic tucked away between Switzerland and France. Only in summer is the republic inhabited, and then by miners and cowgirls. There is one hotel, closed during the winter. Another little republic is in Tyrol, between Austria and Italy, and in long gone years was under the jurisdiction of first a king and then an emperor. But in the adjustment of frontier lines the state of Val di Ventino was in some way overlooked, and it promptly organized itself into a Little Alpine republic. It has now about 2,000 inhabitants, living in six villages. Neither Val di Ventino or Klein-Alp have any taxes. There are no officials or compulsory military service. The only industry of Val di Ventino, aside from the farming of small fields, is charcoal burning.

The Finishing Touch.

"No," says the eminent actress earnestly, "I cannot approve of the fashion that so many members of my profession have of being photographed continually."

The reporter makes some feverish notes and she continues:

"It seems to me that because one is on the stage is no reason why he or she should consider his or her face of absorbing interest to the public."

She continues for half a column and as the reporter is stowing away his notebook she smiles sweetly and says:

"Here is one of my latest photographs for you to use with the interview. I sat for it only yesterday, so you may be sure it has never before been reproduced."—Judge.

The Pacific.

Some women while engaged decorating a village church were informed that a goat was making a meal of a "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" design on the leaves, which had been left in the church yard, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"Make haste, Pat," cried the women, "the goat is starting to eat again."

"Let him ate away," said Pat. "I am goin' to wait until he's got some good will to man' inside of him."
